

Allied Warplanes Blast Axis Troop Transports

By RELMAN MORIN
ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 13.—(P)—American and British sky fleets blasted enemy troop transports in Sicilian waters and battered supply centers on both sides of the Messina Strait yesterday as Allied invasion forces pushed rapidly up Sicily's east coast.

Liberators and Flyingfortresses smashed at Messina in Sicily and the twin ferry terminals of Reggio Calabria and San Giovanni on the Italian mainland in heavy daylight attacks designed to wreck the main supply route for Axis defense of the invaded island.

RAF torpedo planes struck a heavy blow at Axis naval units trying to reinforce the Sicilian defenses by sea, sinking two merchant ships and damaging two destroyers and two large troop transports in daring attacks the past two days.

Throughout yesterday, Allied fighters and fighter-bombers kept up their withering assault against enemy troop columns and communication lines on Sicily, destroying large numbers of land troop transports.

An Allied communique said 28 enemy planes were shot down over or near Sicily yesterday and the preceding night. The Allies lost 11 planes during the same period.

"The Axis has been trying desperately to reinforce Sicily but the attempts have been frustrated to the extent of a considerable number of troops and tons of equipment which have been sent to the bottom of the Mediterranean," said an Air Force announcement at an Allied command post.

This announcement said the RAF torpedo planes which attacked the enemy destroyers left the vessels "blazing from stern to stern."

The preceding day the torpedo planes made their first attack on two vessels off eastern Sardinia and within six minutes a merchant ship had at least three jagged torpedo holes in it. An hour later a second merchant ship was attacked with similar results.

Another attack was made at the same time on another convoy sailing toward Sicily from Naples, escorted by destroyers. One merchant ship and two destroyers were hit and a British pilot said: "It's unlikely that either the freighter or one destroyer reached harbor. They both were listing and smoking when we left."

A 9th U. S. Air Force communique said 100 Liberator bombers from middle east bases dumped more than 650,000 pounds of high explosives on Reggio Calabria and San Giovanni. The railway yard at San Giovanni was said to have been

ALLIES SWEEP OVER SICILY'S DEFENSES

Meandering Along the Main Stem

By WASH FAYETTE

Yesterday I received a letter from Miss Mary Alice Stewart. . . some of you may know her and some may not. . . she was a "cadet teacher" at Washington C. H. High School last fall. . . getting practical experience while still attending Ohio State University. She is very active in "Y" work and this summer is up at Huron, Ohio, on Lake Erie, where she and 17 other girls are working for the farmers, helping them harvest their crops.

In her letter, she says, "We are the only Ohio unit of the Women's Land Army. Our home is an old school building—20 rooms—in Huron, Ohio. There are eighteen of us and more coming soon. We live cooperatively—share expenses and household duties. Tomorrow morning I will finish a week as cook. There's not much for us to do but get up at 5:30 and 'fritter' away our time dressing, cleaning house, getting and eating breakfast, packing lunches, washing dishes and preparing supper as much as possible before eight when the farmers come for us.

She also included a little message for some of our Fayette County farmers—"The farmers certainly appreciate us, too. They are always asking when more are coming. They say we're among their best help. Please tell that to your farmers because when we asked some of them if we could work for them they laughed in our faces."

I think this young lady has the right idea by spending her summer vacation on the farm, where more help is needed. She said that they still have room for a few more up there. That kind of job is one of the few that combines work, pleasure and money together. As they live cooperatively, their household expenses are kept down. Here is an experiment that might help in Fayette County. Anyway, if some Fayette County girls want to try it they will be wanted some place.

RUSSIAN LINES HOLD AGAINST NEW NAZI DRIVE

Germans Resort to Their Old Power-house Tactics in Attack on Kursk Front

IMMENSE LOSS SUFFERED

Reds Admit Battle Acute But Say Enemy's Punch Is Growing Weaker

By WILLIAM MCGAFFIN
MOSCOW, July 13.—(P)—Field Marshal Guenther von Kluge threw the entire weight of his armored columns into a furious attack today against the southern end of the 200-mile Orel-Kursk-Belgorod front in an action designed to enlarge the Belgorod wedge and blast a major breach in the Russian lines.

Dropping all efforts to break through on the northern end of the salient, Von Kluge fell back on the old Nazi power-house play, but the thick Red defenses re-maintained impenetrable, although fighting became so violent that even tank crews of the opposing forces broke into hand-to-hand fighting on one occasion.

(A German communique claimed the Nazi armored forces with the support of the German Air Force had gained further ground in the area just north of Belgorod and had smashed strong enemy counterattacks on other sectors of the front. The Russians suffered "heavy losses" the German communique said, including a total of 400 tanks and 123 aircraft.

The tremendous success of the Red armies was indicated by an announcement today that the Germans have "despaired" of breaking through on the Orel-Kursk sector, after suffering immense losses in one of the most determined attacks they have launched since the nine-day offensive started. Today, the Russians said, German forces on this sector have been considerably reduced in size and are being used merely to consolidate their present positions.

Beef Shortage Begins To Ease; Cattle Moving

Livestock Moves To Market from Feed Lots Where It Had Been Held in Hope for Higher Prices—Grass-fed Steers Also Coming in from Ranges—Farm Production Goals for Next Year Increased

CHICAGO, July 13.—(P)—Improvement in the nation's meat situation, easing to some extent the beef scarcity to civilians, was foreseen by packing company spokesmen today after the unloading of a heavy volume of cattle at the country's major live stock centers yesterday.

Some 80,000 head of cattle arrived at the country's 20 biggest markets, including the highest run in seven months at the big Chicago yards. Indications were farmers were ready to unload their stock.

They said with cattle moving to the markets, the worst part of the beef shortage may be past and civilian supplies should be considerably greater than in recent weeks. The 80,000 arrivals compared with 62,000 a year ago and 65,000 two years ago.

Most of the cattle were from corn belt feed lots. Many had been held off the market, packers said, in the hope that farmers feeding corn to the stock would receive the increased profit margin they had been demanding.

At Chicago, receipts totaled 18,000, the biggest run for any day since last November 30, the largest run for a July day since 1936, and more than at any other center.

Demand for all classes of cattle was broad at all centers and large eastern buying orders arrived at all important middle west markets.

The increased receipts at the packing centers came only a few days after the War Meat Board announced it was mapping a program designed to lessen the beef scarcity.

LUCK RIDES WITH YANK PILOT WHEN HE BAILS OUT IN SICILY

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 13.—(P)—The luckiest "baili-outer of the American Air Forces was believed roaming behind enemy lines in Sicily last night, driving an Axis truck and trying to fight his way to Allied positions.

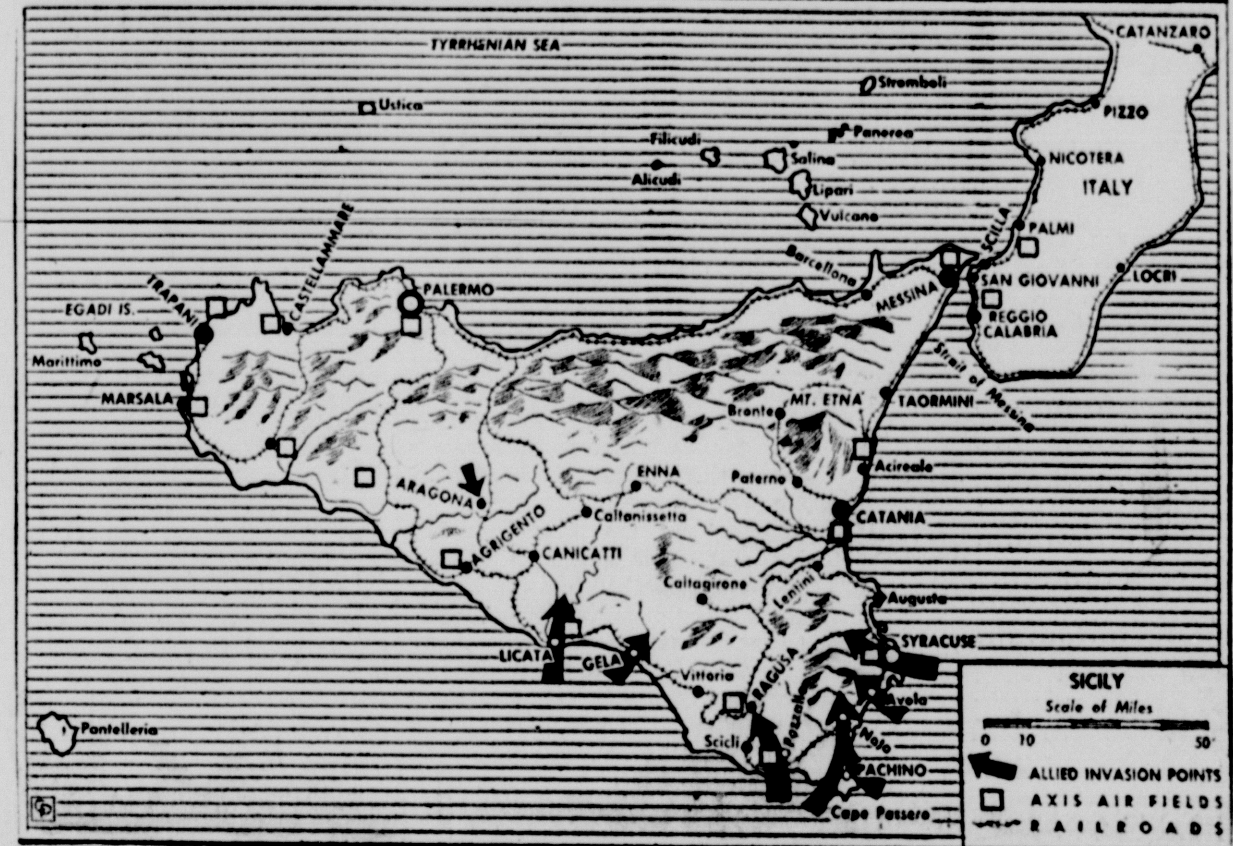

The pilot of an A-36 on a bombing mission was attacked by an Italian fighter, and as he eased out of his damaged craft, his parachute caught on the fuselage and split.

Like a stone, the pilot dropped toward the earth. Fellow fliers hovering above held their breath. He came down between two buildings, remnants of the torn chute caught on a roof edge a few feet from the ground and his fall was broken. He hung dangling for a moment. Then he disengaged himself, dropped unscathed, and began running towards an enemy truck. That's the last his comrades saw of him.

ALLIED INVASION FORCES ADVANCE INLAND ON SICILY

ALLIED INVASION FORCES still are pressing rapidly inland from the southeastern coast of Sicily as still more men, tanks, guns and supplies are landed from ships standing offshore. Greatest prize to fall into Allied hands thus far is the city of Syracuse, which was captured by British assault troops. This map shows all the principal Sicilian cities, cities on the toe of the Italian mainland and the spearheads of the invading forces which are consolidating gains on a 100-mile front. New Civilian Draft Plan May Be Offered In Fall

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(P)—The manpower situation shaped up today as one of the first pressing problems facing the 78th Congress when it returns from its summer vacation two months hence.

Legislators still in the capital disclosed that plans already were under way for consideration of proposals affecting the needs of the armed forces, industry and agriculture, and what is to be done about unemployment when the war ends.

From Chairman May (D-Ky) came the announcement the House military affairs committee intends to go into extensive hearings in the fall on new draft legislation. Among the questions to be examined are a proposal passed by the Senate to boost government payments to dependents of drafted men, and a bill requiring all persons to register for assignment to the places they are needed most—in the armed forces, war industry, or on the farms.

By that time, May said, the committee hopes to have available more data bearing on the prospect of inducing fathers.

"Whether we shall expedite legislation, already passed by the Senate, to boost the government payments to dependents of drafted men will depend in a large measure on the outlook two months from now," May said.

May said he shared a general belief among committee members the induction of fathers would be put off for some time, perhaps indefinitely. In that event, he explained, the need for boosting federal payments al-

Americans Smash Violent Counter Attack To Make Contact With British

By RELMAN MORIN
ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 13.—(P)—Allied invasion forces swept up the east coast of Sicily at a breathtaking pace today, capturing the port of Augusta, 19 miles north of Syracuse, and piling ashore on the beaches near Catania, major city nearly halfway up the coastline to Messina.

British and Canadian troops fought their way into the two strategic communications centers of Ragusa and Palazzola in the southeastern corner of the embattled island, forming a junction with the American troops of Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., at Ragusa and the latter pushed steadily northward from their original landing at Gela.

Again the veteran American troops repelled a fierce counter-attack by Axis forces, destroying a number of enemy tanks and taking prisoners, a headquarters bulletin announced.

Without giving details as to exact sectors, it later was announced that the Allies now have made contact with two regular field divisions of much sterner character than the coastal troops but these failed to offer much greater resistance.

Allied losses at Augusta were described officially as slight and port and harbor installations were undamaged.

Augusta, whose population normally runs between 20,000 and 25,000 persons, is a fine fortified port which has been used as a naval harbor.

Simultaneously with the rapid-fire announcements of Allied successes, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower returned to North Africa from his visit yesterday to United States and Canadian forces on Sicily.

He declared that coordination of the Allied forces there "could not have been better had all the forces been of some single nation."

The junction of Canadian and American forces outside Ragusa consolidated an unbroken line. American troops reached the verge of the city from the west slightly before Canadians drove in from the east, it was reported. Palazzola is 20 miles west of Syracuse and its capture marked the farthest point of advance inland by the invading forces. Ragusa is 12 miles southwest of Palazzola. Both are prizes of great strategic value, being junctions for virtually all the main and secondary highways in southeastern Sicily.

Loss of the two cities will deprive defending Axis forces of much of their mobility in their desperate efforts to head off the many-pronged Allied offensive. Ragusa is in the mountains and gives the forces in possession clear control of the surrounding countryside.

The capture of Augusta was

Several Years

Dr. Alva M. Bush, 76, retired dentist who had been engaged in his profession here for nearly a half century, until ill health forced his retirement two or three years ago, died in White Cross Hospital, Columbus, at 9:10 A. M. Tuesday.

Dr. Bush was removed to the hospital Wednesday of last week and underwent an operation Thursday. He did not regain consciousness.

A number of years ago Dr. Bush suffered a stroke of paralysis and his health had been gradually declining since that time.

Dr. Bush was a member of the First Presbyterian Church and was formerly one of the officials of the church.

He also belonged to the Masonic Lodge and was a member of the various branches of that order, including Garfield Commandery, and had held various offices in the lodge.

His widow is the only close survivor.

Funeral services will be held at the Hook Funeral Home Thursday at 2 P. M. and burial will be made in the family lot in the Greenfield Cemetery.

Friends may call at his late home 411 East Market Street after Wednesday morning.

blanketed with hits. Bomb bursts were observed all along the tracks and a large explosion was reported in the siding area.

At Reggio Calabria, bursts covered the entire target area starting large fires in fuel and ammunition dumps, the communication said.

The Flying Fortresses destroyed two vital railroad bridges at Messina, the ferry terminal on the Sicily side of the strait, and went on to shower more explosives as bombs struck a large building.

The destruction of the bridges undoubtedly will hamper Axis efforts to keep communications open in that vital corner of Sicily, it was said.

Both the Fortress and Liberator squadrons encountered no enemy fighter opposition but reported heavy concentrations of anti-aircraft fire.

Meanwhile, lighter Allied planes were busy keeping up ceaseless attacks on air fields still in enemy hands on Sicily and intercepting intermittent enemy attempts to interfere with Allied landings and convoys.

Among their targets were the Sicilian towns of Agrigento, Canicatti, Gerbini, Milo, Trapani and Marsala.

The fortress crews reported seeing long seaborne convoys bringing heavy Allied reinforcements and supplies into Sicily.

"Landing barges, ships and still more ships were coming across the Mediterranean," said Lieut. Andrew Pierson of Milwaukee.

Lieut. Alcini Landry of 422 Cooper Street, San Antonio, Tex., who completed his 50th mission, said: "We could see occasional shelling from the guns our boys had hauled up from the beaches."

"Landing barges still were unloading men all along the southern coast of Sicily," said Sergt. Howard W. Honca of Blevins, Ark. "Fifteen miles inland I could see lines of trucks and tanks moving northward. Catania was still burning from our attacks the previous day."

Southern Sicily was described as "pock-marked" by Sergt. John Schwichtenberg of Chicago, who said he saw only one enemy battery still in action against the incoming Allied ships.

Marauders and Lightnings went after the town of Agrigento, from which strong Axis counterattacks against American forces holding the Gela Bay area may come. They hit barracks, a power station and a railroad station with their bombs.

Lightnings also teamed with A-36 Mustangs in nonstop sweeps over highways and railroads all

MRS. ELLA DAKIN DIES
FOLLOWING ILLNESS

Mrs. Ella Elizabeth Dakin, 91, for years a resident of Sabina, died at the Dibold Rest Home in Wilmington after a long illness.

Mrs. Dakin's husband, Milton M. Dakin, died about 15 years ago. She is survived, however, by one son, O. H. Dakin of Chicago, and a grandson, F. W. Dakin of the Army Air Forces and stationed at Patterson Field, Dayton.

She had been in failing health for several years but had remained at her home in Sabina until about a month ago when her condition began to grow more critical. Then she was taken to the rest home.

Funeral services will be held at the Littleton Funeral Home at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon and interment will be in the Sabina Cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home.

over Sicily, bombing Axis troop-carrying and artillery trucks.

One formation set fire to 35 vehicles and damaged many others in attacking four different convoys. Another caught a column of gun-carrying trucks and destroyed 15 of them. Bombs were planted squarely on another convoy which included half-track armored vehicles with guns and an ammunition truck. The munitions carrier blew up and ten trucks were destroyed.

Mitchells, with a Lightning escort, attacked air fields at Gerbini, dropping bombs across the runways and scoring hits among parked planes.

During the night Wellingtons plastered Trapani, Marsala and Mazara Del Vallo, hitting factories and harbor installations and starting large fires. Wellingtons also scattered bombs over Monte Cornino Air Field.

Planes ranged over the roads behind enemy lines, hunting troop movements.

Warhawks escorted Bostons in an early morning attack on the Milo and Trapani Air Fields. Three enemy fighters tried to stop them but were driven off.

AMENDMENT TO BUTCHER RULING

Latest Provisions Given by Harry Silcott of War Board

Following is an amendment to FDR 27-2, Butchers' Application and Permit for Livestock Slaughter:

A person who has been issued a Butcher permit in Fayette County can in July slaughter the same number of cattle slaughtered by him in July, 1941, or if he slaughtered no cattle during July, 1941, his July, 1942, quota shall be 50 percent of his average monthly slaughter of cattle from January 1, 1942, to September 30, 1942.

Harry Silcott, chairman of Fayette County USDA War Board, states that persons issued Butcher permits can slaughter the same number of swine, veal and lamb in July, 1943, as they did in July, 1941. If they did not slaughter swine, veal or lamb during July, 1941, they can slaughter 50 percent of the average monthly slaughter of swine, veal and lamb from January 1, 1942, to September 30, 1942.

ready provided would be lessened.

However, he added, should the outlook in September indicate the early induction of fathers, additional financial provisions for them would have to be made speedily by Congress.

Also on the committee's docket for early consideration is the Austin-Wadsworth national service bill under which all men and women would be required to register for assignment to services where there was a need for them.

Backed by the American Legion and other groups, the Austin-Wadsworth bill has drawn the fire of many organizations, including religious groups, who have contended it would break up homes, encourage regimentation of the American people, and violate the constitutional ban against involuntary service.

Rep. Ramspeck (D-Ga.), majority whip of the House, said at the same time that consideration would be given a number of plans for meeting post-war conditions, with emphasis on "assuring private employment" rather than public works.

Like the legislators, the administrators of Washington showed a tendency to look ahead while wrestling with current problems.

Marvin Jones, war food administrator, called on farmers of the nation to use all their skill and resources to keep meat, dairy and egg production high, yet plant 380,000,000 acres of crops in 1944.

A new approach to labor problems in wartime was advanced, meanwhile, by Chairman Thomas (D-Utah) of the Senate labor committee. He urged that the industry-labor committee which wrote the "no strike" pledge after Pearl Harbor be revived as an agency to settle the major controversies. Legislation cannot curb strikes, said Thomas, and the feeling of compromise between workers and employers should be "fostered."

Thinking about the 1944 campaign, Senator Aiken, of Vermont, outspoken Republican member of the Senate farm bloc, came forth with the startling suggestion that the GOP "borrow" Senator Gillette (D-Ia) as the presidential nominee. He called Gillette a "rank and file" candidate—"the type of men we should be looking for."

He had this to say of assigning American flying personnel: "The routes across the oceans run two ways. We're not keeping boys on the fighting front until they're worn out—we've brought more than 9,000 officers and enlisted men of the AAF back to the United States to help train new men."

With capture of Ragusa American forces on the southern shores of Sicily formed a junction with the Canadians and British.

Rome earlier acknowledged that a bridgehead had been established at Augusta. It was bombarded Monday by a strong flotilla of Allied cruisers.

American troops in the western sector, on the south shores of Sicily, continue to advance and "an enemy counterattack with tanks has successfully been beaten off and a large number of prisoners taken and some tanks destroyed."

Lt. Williams went into the Air Forces at Patterson Field, Dayton, June 12, 1942, and remained there for three months before he was transferred to Pendleton Field, Ore., where he was selected for Officer Candidate School and went to Miami Beach, Fla. After receiving his commission there, he was assigned to Randolph Field as tactical instructor in the bombardier school and took an additional six-week course of special training.

Lieut. Williams is a graduate of Bloomingburg High School and attended both Ohio State and Wilmington College. He holds a B. A. degree in education. He taught two years at Madison Mills and made many friends in that immediate community.

The engagement of Lt. Williams and Miss Dorothy Baughn of Columbus was announced recently. Miss Baughn also taught at Madison Mills.

Pilots of Allied bombers participating in the furious aerial onslaught against Axis targets throughout Sicily reported that the Sicilian Straits still were choked with transport and supply ships carrying reinforcements to the British, American and Canadian forces which spearheaded the invasion.

American troops, meanwhile, were advancing in the west.

Florida is eight miles inland from Syracuse, and Palazzolo 22 miles inland. Ragusa, a strategic rail and highway center, is 12 miles southwest of Palazzolo, and about 12 miles from the southern coast. Thus was a line drawn across the jutting corner.

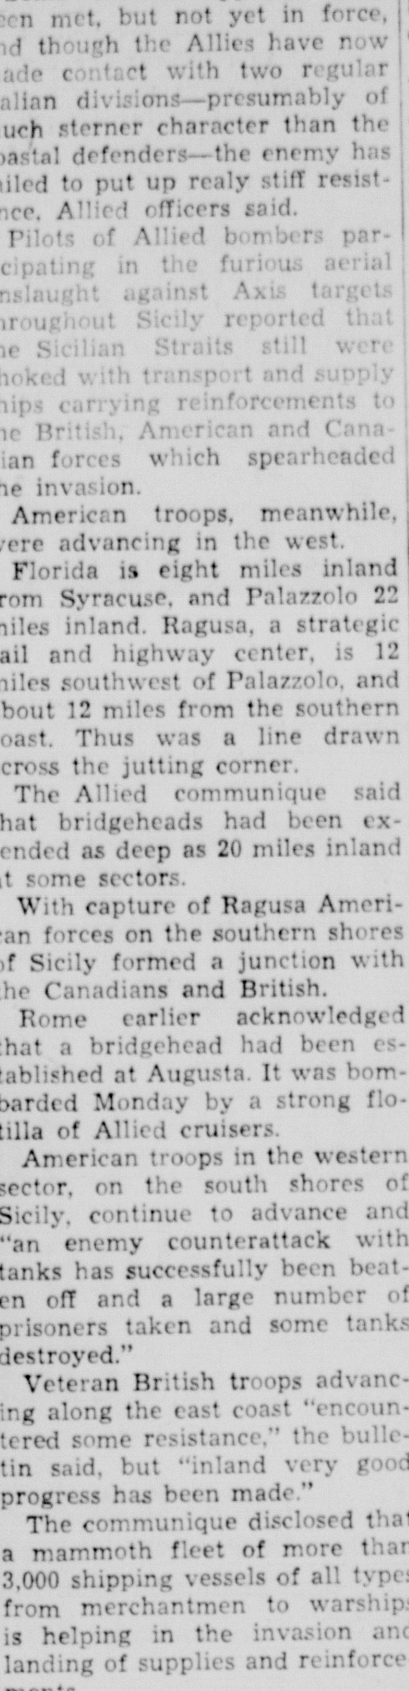

The Allied communique said that bridgeheads had been extended as deep as 20 miles inland at some sectors.

With capture of Ragusa American forces on the southern shores of Sicily formed a junction with the Canadians and British.

Rome earlier acknowledged that a bridgehead had been established at Augusta. It was bombarded Monday by a strong flotilla of Allied cruisers.

American troops in the western sector, on the south shores of Sicily, continue to advance and "an enemy counterattack with tanks has successfully been beaten off and a large number of prisoners taken and some tanks destroyed."

Some German opposition has been met, but not yet in force, and though the Allies have now made contact with two regular Italian divisions—presumably of much sterner character than the coastal defenders—the enemy has failed to put up really stiff resistance, Allied officers said.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

This Is War of Resources And Production and Allies Have Both, Evidence Shows

War Production Chief Donald Nelson's "Voice of Doom" speech, hurled at the Axis from Toronto just before the Allied invasion of Sicily, answers by indirection a troublesome question which a reader of this column has submitted, namely, what concrete evidence have we to substantiate claims that the German-Italian combine is short of resources and is on the down grade in production.

Well, there's much satisfactory evidence that the Axis is on the skids. I should say that more than a little support for this is to be seen in the United Nations' triumph in Tunisia and the present manner in which they have invaded Sicily—one of Mussolini's main strongholds.

We also have substantiation from Allied secret agents, from captured documents, from admissions by prisoners of war, from shrewd calculations by Allied experts. However, if you demand precise figures to show the decline, it must be admitted that it isn't easy to find them.

Now along comes Mr. Nelson and shows us in a few graphic words that it doesn't matter how much the Axis is producing because the United Nations are doing so much more. We can smother the enemy at their best.

That's a cogent reminder of the basic fact that this is a war of resources and transportation—as witness the invasion of Sicily. The Allies have many times the resources of the Axis. Therefore the Allies must win.

Chairman Nelson says that the North American continent alone will outproduce the Axis in munitions this year by nearly two to one. All the United Nations will make three times the Axis output of arms, and next year four times.

"These figures speak to the world in a big voice," he declares "and if the Nazi and Jap war-lords are not completely insane, they will recognize that the voice is the voice of doom."

But Mr. Nelson doesn't let this blind him to the "serious effects of the spasmodic strikes and riots on the war production program" in this country. He warns that "the times call for a cooperative war production effort of increasing pace and magnitude, matching the military effort."

While Nelson was speaking in Toronto, I heard the "Voice of Doom" thesis, and the magnitude of our task, developed here in New York at a private preview of the Walt Disney Productions' picturization of Major Alexander P. De Seversky's book "Victory Through Air Power." The famous airman-inventor himself appears on the screen and at one point in discussing our war effort says dramatically:

"With our abundant resources, wealth of manpower, and tremendous industrial capacity—why, we can build the biggest Army, the biggest Navy and the biggest Air Force—and with this super-colossal team we'll smother the enemy with the sheer weight of our men and machines!"

"The success of this procedure depends on two things. First we must produce a vast amount of weapons of endless variety—and second, we must deliver this maze of equipment to battlefronts that are spread all over the face of the earth."

"Already nearly one hundred million tons of vital supplies are required every month—month after month—and if we step up the offense, this tonnage will grow."

Seversky shows the all-important part the air plays in maintaining Allied communications, and in reaching out across the borders of enemy countries and smashing their production centers, supply bases and lines of communications. That brings us back to Mr. Nelson, for he said:

"We have every reason to believe that in Italy and Germany the wholesale destruction of plants from the air is reducing munitions output well below recent peak levels."

And then in making a plea for

FEW APPRECIATE HARDSHIPS OF WAR IN AFRICA

So Says Washington C. H. Soldier's Mother After Visit to Hospital

Few people in this country fully realize the hardships the fighting men have undergone in the war in North Africa. Mrs. Olie Mae Upperman said after returning from a visit with her son, Pvt. Paul Upperman, now recovering from injuries in the new Fletcher Memorial Hospital for men wounded in the service, at Cambridge.

It was the first time Mrs. Upperman, who lives at 709 John Street, had seen her son since late last year before he sailed for overseas duty. In the long talk they had at the hospital, Mrs. Upperman said her son had given her a sketchy first hand story of the fighting which finally drove the Axis out of Africa after months of bitter fighting.

There were times, she said her son had told her, when he and his comrades had gone as long as three days with no more than a can of concentrated rations to eat. This was, however, when the Allies were making continuous attacks upon the enemy, she explained and added "of course, he has lost considerable weight."

Like most of the other boys who have come back from the battlefields, Pvt. Upperman did not talk much about his thrilling experiences.

Neither he or his mother have much to say about the injury to his foot which invalidated him out of active service after having taken part in several decisive battles. His mother said he was in good health otherwise and in high spirits. She explained that while the exact nature of his foot injuries were not known, he had had to brace it with a silver plate since he was six years old because of trouble with the bones. Whether it is a recurrence of the old difficulties or a battle wound, his mother did not say. An X-ray was planned by army surgeons to determine how to proceed with treatment, she added. His mother declared his foot was "not exactly painful" and that he managed to "get about some" on it.

Pvt. Upperman entered the service on September 4, 1942, and took his basic training at Camp Edwards, Mass., where he was schooled in driving jeeps. However, after he went overseas, he was assigned in the infantry and went to the front.

Mrs. Upperman has another son, Glenn, who is on active duty with the United States Navy in the Pacific. The last word received from him was 13 weeks ago when he was in Hawaii.

greater production, Nelson prophesied:

"You will shortly see gigantic battles in which unheard of war materials will be consumed."

In the comparatively few hours since that prediction was made the first of these great battles has got under way. The test is begun.

A friend in the national House of Representatives has mailed to this newspaper a page from the Congressional Record which contains a statement by Congressman Paul Stewart, a Democrat, of Oklahoma, which he made in Congress recently, containing a humorous gem which probably most Fayette County agriculturists will duly appreciate.

This contribution by Congressman Stewart, which is mostly a reproduction of a letter in the form of an unofficial opinion from an assistant attorney general of Arkansas, another Democrat by the way, is not what could be termed a statesmanlike communication but in these hectic days when a sense of humor is needed for relief, it rather hits a timely mark. Anyway, we suggest that you read it. Here is what Congressman Stewart offered:

Mr. Stewart. Mr. Speaker, out of the regions whence life shone its first light upon me came forth an interpreter of the signs of time and the right of men that are and were the philosophy of free men. Yet this little epistle comes in the pure form of a parable which has given unto this Union all things that are good.

THE DIFFERENCE
The virtues of baseball and a sporting spirit shine with even greater luster in war time. Sergeant John F. Huth, American newspaperman in North Africa, tells of a Frenchman watching with much interest an American baseball game with all the trimmings.
"You Americans get things done and still have time to play," he observed admiringly. "But why do they call the referee all those names, and why doesn't he order them away?"
The newspaperman explained that it was all a part of the game, and that both the players and the spectators had a right to make any comments they wanted to, as long as they didn't use a ball bat to back up their indignation.
"Ah, Europe needs something of that!" sighed the Frenchman. "But it may be long before we can adopt the same technique." And as he said that, Europe's everlasting war seemed to grow a little clearer. If the Europeans would just play ball, literally and figuratively, they might by-pass an awful lot of trouble.

Washington at a Glance
By JACK STINNETT
WASHINGTON D. C.—Repercussions from the row between Vice President Henry Wallace's Board of Economic Warfare and Commerce Secretary Jesse Jones' Reconstruction Finance Corporation will be long and resounding.
It's a basic battle between agencies with overlapping authority and it may well result in a sweeping legislative reorganization which would see at least all bureaus now having anything to do with Latin American relations consolidated under one head.
It might even result in a new cabinet post—a Secretary of Latin American affairs—creation of which would recognize the vital importance of Western Hemisphere commercial, industrial, agricultural and military solidarity.
Congress and the administration already have recognized the importance of the State Department to cope with all phases of hemispheric relationship. The latter has established and the former appropriated funds for four wartime agencies which deal with Latin American relations.
This doesn't include the staggering activities of the War and Navy Departments from the Caribbean to the Cape. Nor does it include the continuing activities of the Departments of Agriculture and Commerce, which have been doing research and cooperative development of agriculture and commerce in many Latin American countries for years.
They do include Nelson A. Rockefeller's Office of the Coordinator of the Inter-American Affairs; that important part of BEW which deals with South and Central America; all lend-lease activities below the Rio Grande and in the Caribbean; and that portion of Jesse Jones' RFC Funds which go for the development and importation of strategic materials from the same area.
In view of this this spread of Latin American activities, consider the statement of one member of the Senate who has had very few of his bills kicked down in recent years: "He asked that his name not be used until he

Diet and Health
Premature Birth Toll Drops
By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
IN A VERY large modern hospital the death rate of premature infants fell from 60 per cent 15 years ago to 16 per cent last year.
Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.
This is a remarkable advance and is due to the application of a very careful routine of treatment and immediate care.
The four factors in saving the premature baby's life are: (1) Maintenance of body temperature (2) individualized feeding, (3) specialized nursing technique and (4) prevention of infection.
Both the heat-regulating mechanism and the respiratory center of the premature infant are imperfectly developed. Body temperature drops rapidly to that of the surrounding air. Conversely, it is very easy to raise the temperature of the infants, and attempts to keep them warm without well regulated supervision are apt to do more harm than good.
Keep Air Humid
The temperature should be maintained between 80 and 85° Fahrenheit. Incubators or evenly heated cribs which will maintain this temperature are available in most modern hospitals today. Premature infants do not thrive in a low humidity and a humidifier or air conditioning apparatus is required to keep the air of the ward or crib between 60 and 65°. The breathing must be watched very carefully and some form of artificial respiration substituted if necessary.
The digestive apparatus, even in the smallest premature infant, is reasonably well developed. Breast milk is the ideal food and every effort should be made to secure it. If not available, some form of evaporated or peptonized milk may be substituted. It is found best to start feeding within two hours after the infant is born unless there are special indications against it.
The premature infant needs a good many calories—from 45 to 50 per pound of body weight in the first 24 hours. This amount should be increased to at least 60 calories within 10 days. Smaller infants should be fed at two-hour intervals by day and three-hour intervals at night. Vitamins should be added to this diet early.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
E. P.: I hear that tomatoes cause rheumatism. Is this true?
Answer: No, tomatoes do not cause anything bad.
P. J. B.: What can we substitute for milk for a boy fifteen years of age, who is allergic to it?
Answer: The main necessary ingredient in milk is calcium. This can be supplied in many calcium powders and preparations at a drug store. Mead, Johnson & Co., Evansville, Indiana, make several preparations which are milk substitutes, suitable for infants as well as children. Mellin's Food contains wheat flour, malted barley and potassium bicarbonate. Many Heinz products are prepared especially to remove milk. Smaco Hypo-allergic Milk, made by the SMA Corporation, Cleveland, Ohio, is a good substitute.
G. G.: Is goat's milk healing to an ulcerated stomach? Is wild honey as irritating as sugar? Is tobacco injurious to stomach ulcer, and if so, what form is worst?
Answer: Goat's milk has the same soothing effect on ulcer of the stomach as cow's milk. All sweets are irritating, including wild honey. Tobacco is irritating—all forms—but chewing tobacco is the worst.

Leave My Heart Alone
BY ADELAIDE HUMPHRIES
WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PESS ASSOCIATION
SYNOPSIS
KAREN BELL, wealthy and lovely, decides to announce the date of her marriage to PAUL WYATT, her sweetheart since childhood.
YESTERDAY: On her private beach, Karen suddenly and surprisingly encounters again the young stranger with whom she had such an upsetting meeting on the boulevard.
CHAPTER FOUR
WHEN KAREN SAID, "Hello, how are you this morning?" she made it as casual and friendly as if she were not so taken by surprise in encountering the shabby young man of the trailer again. Casualness was a good cover-up for astonishment, and friendliness should make him see that she was not the mean little snob he thought her.
But the young man—he did not appear quite so shabby, although his blue sport shirt was faded and his tan slacks were far from new—did not respond in the same spirit. His manner was curt, his answer brief, "I am quite well, thank you—and you?" His eyes—they were even bluer than she had remembered—regarded her with that quizzical expression she had found so annoying. It was almost as if they said, "It is quite evident that you are all right, looking so radiant and glowing, with your hair curling around your face and your skin so coppery in contrast to your white swim suit and robe; it is quite evident that you are thoroughly and completely pleased with yourself."
To cover her annoyance, and for want of something better to say, Karen said, "I suppose you still are looking at the ocean."
She wondered why he had chosen this particular stretch of beach. She could have told him that he had no right to be on it—but again, could she? The beach, as well as the ocean, belonged, by rights, to any and every man. The signs marked "Private" and "No Trespassing" legally covered only the ground approaching the sand. There were plenty of public beaches, however, and miles and miles of water front not posted.
"Yes, I'm still looking at the ocean," the young man said. "Looking at it helps me think, straightens things out. It makes you realize how small and insignificant and useless you are, and at the same time it makes you believe in a number of things you just believe in. But YOU wouldn't quit what I'm talking about. I suppose you are thinking that you should warn me that this special part is restricted and not for the likes of me."
"I have no intention of saying anything of the kind," Karen flashed, but his words had hit so near to what had been in her thoughts that she felt the warm color flood her cheeks. "These signs aren't posted to keep people from walking up the beach itself. They are meant to protect the property. The beach houses and cabanas, and well, yes, to insure some privacy for the people who live here all the time. But as far as I am concerned, you may look at the ocean from whatever place you choose, and I don't know why you're so rude and uppity when I tried to make amends for yesterday by being civil and when I didn't give your license number to the police."
It was a longer and much franker speech than she had intended. But this young man had a way of riling up her temper, for again Karen was simply seething inside. She was sorry now she had spoken to him. She turned abruptly on her flat-heeled, cork-soled sandals and would have walked haughtily and disdainfully away.
His voice stopped her. It held a note of laughter now, not unkindly, but a bit on the apologetic side. "I say, don't fly up at me again! I guess I deserved it this time. I suppose I am about as uppity in my way as you are in yours—and I'll admit I probably have the worse temper. We needn't always get off to a wrong start. Come on back and talk awhile, please."
If it had not been for that "please," Karen told herself, she would not have returned. But she knew, somehow, that it was quite a concession, coming from this man. Besides, she wanted to put him straight on something else he had said that had rankled her. Telling her what the ocean meant! When she had lived by it and with it all her life, when she loved it almost as much as if it were a person.
She came back slowly and saw that the young man was holding out his hand. She did not want to make up to that extent—after all, he was a perfect stranger—but she could not very well refuse his overture, so she gave him her own and they shook hands solemnly, then they both burst out laughing together.
"You'd think we were a couple of prize fighters meeting in the ring," the young man said. His teeth were a flash of white when he laughed, and although he was not as handsome as Paul, who was so very dark and attractive in his aristocratic way, this man had a good face, strong and clean and hard, as if it bore a quality of its own, blue-blooded heritage.
"Or a couple of kids," Karen agreed. There was no use in being childish. She was old enough to talk with a stranger, to shake hands with one if she chose. She was old enough, she hoped, to judge a man for what he was and not what he might seem. This boy was all right, even if he was not her kind, if his world was so far removed from her own. And he was not much more than a boy, 25 or 26, probably, and not some mysterious, and therefore dangerous, law-breaker as she had thought at their first unfortunate encounter.
"There's one thing I want you to know," Karen said as soon as he relinquished her hand from his firm, warm grasp. "I do understand about the ocean. It affects me that way, too. It helps me think straight. It makes me feel small and yet big at the same time. That is one reason I came down so early

New Tax Plan Needs Bookkeeping
By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
WASHINGTON — Don't get too excited if the government seems to be nicking your pay check for a bigger (or a smaller) income tax than you would have contributed under the old method of collection.
The pay-as-you-go plan will result in some wage earners temporarily paying more taxes than they actually owe. A larger number, for the time being, will pay less than they owe. Uncle Sam, however, will square up with both groups next March.
(This is entirely separate, of course, from the unabated 25 per cent of one year's taxes—1942 or 1943, whichever is lower—which are to be paid half on March 15, 1944, and half on March 15, 1945.)
Same Tax Rates
Tax rates on 1943 income are the same as they were on 1942 income. The new law only changes the method of collecting taxes. Temporary over-payments and under-payments result from efforts to simplify the withholding process.
One reason for this is the wage-bracket method of withholding taxes. A levy of 20 per cent on wages above $12 a week for single persons, $24 a week for married persons (plus $6 for each dependent) is the basic withholding rate. But employers may, if they desire, use government tables which specify the withholding amount for each wage bracket. The idea is to make their bookkeeping easier.
For example, John Smith (married and no children) has a wage of $60 a week. He will contribute the same amount, $8.20 a week, as Bill Brown, a $69-per-week man with the same family status. In equalities like this will be adjusted in complete returns on 1943 income which taxpayers must make as usual by next March 15.
Deductions Vary
If a wage earner has contributed more tax than he actually owes, the collector of revenue will then give him a refund. If he owes more tax than has been withheld, he will have to pay the difference.
Another reason for temporary overpayment and underpayment is that the withholding plan makes specific allowance for only one deduction—personal exemption based on family status. A "statistical" allowance is made for the average deduction, but wage earners with unusually large deductions may be overtaxed and those with very small credits may be undertaxed temporarily.
The new system is on the complicated side, but the thing to remember is that the withholding levy aims at collecting from current income a sum roughly approximating actual tax liability. And liability is based on the same tax rates and the same allowances for exemptions and deductions as you used in making out your return last March.
Extra Bookkeeping For Some
Certain classes of taxpayers, however, will have to do some extra bookkeeping this year. Single persons receiving wages figured to exceed $2,700 and married persons receiving wages of more than $3,500 must estimate their tax liability above the withholding amount (plus 1943 March and June payments) on September 15 and pay the excess then and on Dec. 15. After this year, excess settlements

Miss Margaret Whiteside, Private (f. c.) John Louis United in Marriage

Ceremony Is Performed in El Paso, Texas,
On Wednesday, July 7, in Asbury
Methodist Church

Quiet simplicity marked the wedding ceremony performed Wednesday evening, July 7th, at seven o'clock, uniting Miss Margaret Whiteside, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grant T. Whiteside, of Sabina, and Private (f. c.) John B. Louis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Louis, of Sabina.

The rites were read by Reverend Walter H. Vanderpool in the Asbury Methodist Church, El Paso, Texas, at seven o'clock. A short organ program was played by Miss Dorothy Marlowe, preceding the wedding, and included "Londonderry Air" and "Ave Maria."

Private (f. c.) Warren H. Patton, a close friend of the bridegroom, gave the bride in marriage in the absence of her father who was unable to attend the ceremony.

Private (f. c.) Ned M. Townsend served as best man.

The bride, a girl of unusual brunette beauty, never looked lovelier than for her marriage. Demure and dainty, she had selected a white organza princess dress, with matching Dutch bonnet. She carried a white Bible on which were fastened gardenias and white satin shower ribbons. For something old, she carried a blue handkerchief of her mother's.

Mrs. Whiteside, mother of the bride, was the only witness from the immediate families, and looked most attractive and smart in a black sheer dress, with a large brim black straw hat and matching accessories. Her flowers were a shoulder corsage of gardenias.

Mrs. Whiteside was hostess to a small reception for the young couple at the Hotel Cortez, El Paso, immediately following the reception, after which the young couple left for El Rancho Dude Ranch, On-the-Mesa.

The young bride was graduated from Sabina High School last spring, and since that time has assisted in the office of the Ton Jon Company, in Sabina, of which her father is owner and manufacturer.

Pvt. Louis attended the University of Cincinnati two years, and Ohio State University, two years, being in the school of dentistry. He will be in the Surgical Department of the Hospital William Beaumont General Hospital, El Paso.

The young couple will be at home after July 12, at 2700 Gold Street, El Paso, Texas.

Eastern Stars And Families Are Guests Monday

Despite the rain of Monday afternoon, the picnic supper given to the Eastern Star Officers and their families by Mrs. Frank Littler was equally as delightful held on the porch and indoors, instead of a setting on the lovely lawn surrounding the home.

It was a particularly gay and enjoyable affair, for which the gracious hostess had planned everything to make it a success. The small tables, placed in the side porch and living room, were prettily decked in picnic fashion, and centered with bowls of sweet peas. The appetizing courses, consisting of everything that goes with such an occasion, were served from the buffet-table, where sweet peas also centered the table.

Rounding out the pleasurable evening, was the informal visiting and relaxation after the supper hour.

Cards Vs. McCarthy's Secret For All-Star Game Sell-out

PHILADELPHIA, June 13—(AP)—They're putting on baseball's All-Star "Midsummer Night's Dream Game" tonight, but the way it shapes up, it looks like the St. Louis Cardinals against a "military secret" from the American League.

The National League boss, Billy Southworth, is going to "stand or get flattened" with a powerhouse starting set headed by five members of his world champion Cardinals' cast, including his right-hand rifle-baller, Mort Cooper. But, Yankee Manager Joe McCarthy, after looking over his American League squad, has come up with a lineup that bears a striking resemblance to double talk in Braille.

From the way the American Leaguers have been making pronouncements the only thing the Junior Circuit campaigners appear at all sure of is the game will be played at Shibe Park at 9 P. M.

For the first time in the 11-year history the SRO sign will be out. All signs now point to a sell-out of some 33,000, cash customers and a gate of about 70,000.

When McCarthy announced his lineup, he not only didn't know his starting eleven—although the general guess was that it would be Ernie Bonham of the

BASEBALL FANS TO BE LURED WITH ADDED ATTRACTIONS WHEN CUBS AT CINCINNATI

CINCINNATI, July 13—(AP)—The question of how far major league baseball players can throw will be at least partially settled on the evening of July 15 at Crosley Field when members of the Cincinnati Reds and Chicago

Back Again

Dain Clay, Cincinnati Reds pitcher, is expected to pitch for the Reds when they play the Chicago Cubs at Crosley Field on July 15.

Cubs step to home plate and throw baseballs as far as possible. This event has been added to the attractions of the field meet which will take place before that night's clash of Reds and Cubs.

One of the throwers on whom particular attention will rest is Dain Clay, promising young Red-legged outfielder, who can throw with the best of them. Last year at Houston, Clay threw a ball over the right field fence, 322 feet from home plate. In the July meet Clay will attempt to throw the ball over Cincinnati's leftfield wall, which is 328 feet removed from home.

Besides possessing a whale of an arm, Clay is exceptionally fast. The Cincinnati Club made the deal for him because of his future possibilities as a big league player. Last year at Houston, he stole 27 bases, batted in 76 runs and scored 71 himself, and as a sideline specialized in winning field meets.

In addition to the long distance throw, the field events will include an accuracy throw for catchers, fungo hitting, a 75-yard dash, relay from the outfield, and a wheelbarrow race from pitcher's mound to home plate, an event in which the participants are to be blindfolded.

2-Day Recess Is Forced at North Randall

CLEVELAND, July 13—(AP)—Eight fast two-year-old pacers step out today in the feature race of North Randall's Grand Circuit program, after a two-day recess.

The $5,106 Geers pacing stake will attract Mrs. James B. Johnson's Good Bye and the Wilco Farm's Attorney, who divided victories in two previous feature attractions.

The anticipated debut of Austin Hanover, $15,000 trotter will be delayed because the swift colt developed a high temperature Sunday.

Other three-year-old trotters, however, will compete in the Peninsular Farms Stake for a purse of $1,000. Worthy Boy, who took a heat from the famous Volo Song last week, is the favored entry.

Sep Palin, veteran reinsman, will be in the sulky behind World Boy and Good Bye, and will make a third appearance back of a favorite when he steers Blue again in a 2.21 pace, for a $1,000 purse. Completing the card will be a 2:20 trot for $500.

Nelson Is Golfer To Beat To Win Chicago Tourney

CHICAGO, July 13—(AP)—Byron Nelson brings his pick and shovel to golf's goldmine next week to try for the third time to excavate the most money from the Tam O'Shanter diggins.

Recognized as one of the game's best money players, Lord Byron has shown complete mastery of the Tam course in winning the open championship in par-shattering style the last two years. Again this year he is tabbed the one to beat.

The entry list for this year's open, with its glittering $10,000 in prizes—$2,000 to the champion—has ballooned to 75. Sam Byrd of Philadelphia, the former New York Yankee outfielder, is the latest prospect to cast his lot with such players as Jimmy Demaret, Chick Harbert, Harry Cooper, Herman Barron, Lloyd Mangrum and Sgt. Jim Turnesa.

GRAIN MARKET NEWS SUMMARY

CHICAGO, July 13—(AP)—Wheat futures prices held within rather narrow limits in fairly steady trading today but demand for rye was less active and prices drifted fractionally lower.

Milling demand for the bread cereal appeared on setbacks, and hedging sales were lighter. Reports from the eastern seaboard said 125,000 barrels of flour had been sold and Kansas City reported a good demand from Millers.

Wheat finished 1/4-1/2 cents higher than the previous close; July 14, September 1 1/2-1 3/4; oats were 1/4 to 1/2 up, July 72 1/2; and rye was 1/4 lower to 1/2 higher, July 11 1/2, September 1 1/2-1 3/4.

Pitching Feats For Cuban Star

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—One of the top pitchers in the class B Piedmont League is Julio Acosta, the Cuban ace, who toils for the Richmond Colts.

Acosta has accomplished two outstanding feats this season. He came within one strikeout of matching Johnny Vander Meer's old Piedmont record for strike-outs when he fanned 19. Vander Meer, now with the Cincinnati Reds, struck out 20 in a game when he hurled for the Durham, N. C., Bulls.

Acosta has turned in a no-hit, no-run performance, and it was against the league-leading Portsmouth Cubs, too. The only flaw in Acosta's performance was that he walked one player.

NEW YORK, July 13—(AP)—The National and American Leagues to the contrary notwithstanding, the real all-star team is due to play today at San Francisco, not Philadelphia. . . . Col. Russ Newland gives us this list of service stars who will oppose the Oakland-San Francisco squad in a benefit game: The starting battery was to have been Charley (Red) Ruffing and Harry (the Horse) Danning, but they were hurt in practice. Joe Hatten (Dodgers) and Rugger Ardizola (Yankees) also will be on hand to pitch. For infielders there are Chuck Stevens (Browns), Lieut. Charley Gehring (Tigers), Cookie Lavagetto (Dodgers), Dario Lodigiani (White Sox) and Nanny Fernandez (Browns). Outfielders include Max West (Braves), Wally Judnich (Browns), Joe Marty (Phillies) and Myril Hoag (Yankees). . . . What, no Joe DiMaggio?

One-Minute Sports Page

Alabama may be the next big name added to the "no football" list. The tide is all tied up by lack of non-army material. . . . It required intervention by League Presy Ford Frick to persuade Ernie Lombardi's draft board to advance Schnozz's screen test to yesterday so he could play in the All-Star game. . . .

Today's Guest Star

Bill McKee, Ashland, O., Time-Gazette: "William Schroeder, Wooster College freshman coach, is teaching communications to pre-flight naval cadets there. That ought to be the head coach's job at any school because he's the fellow experienced at it. The course ought to be taught by somebody like Carl Snavely of Cornell, who was acclaimed by Ohio State as the finest communications officer in football."

Headline Headliner

When Don MacGregor, star of the Iowa State Prison eleven, said he hoped to join the Pittsburgh pro footballers after his release, the Chicago Daily News headline scribbled: "Here's something! Burglar wants to become a steeler."

Baleta Ball Despised in Baseball Is Giving Golfers Longer Drives

DETROIT, July 13—(AP)—The baleta ball that baseball men came to despise is by some tests giving the golfer more distance this summer on his booming drives.

This was shown the authority to-day of dapper Jimmy DeMaret, Texas-born Detroit pro, whose tests have changed doubting duffers into cheerful contributors of old golf balls into the repro-cessing hopper.

DeMaret drove a dozen balls—three from the pro shop shelves and three reprocessed numbers. His longest drive of 255 yards was with an old pellet. The reprocessed ball averaged eight yards more in distance.

A few days later DeMaret repeated his experiment and got the same eight-yard difference.

Indians Drop Selves to Tie With Browns

(By The Associated Press)

The strain in the closely-laced American Association pennant race is finally beginning to tell, judging by the way Indianapolis beat itself last night to fall back into a tie with Milwaukee for the lead.

Minneapolis knocked off the Tribe 7 to 5 by scoring a pair of runs in the 10th inning when right fielder Willard Pike dropped Frank Trechok's long fly. The error blew the Indians' chance of widening their lead since the Brewers' doubleheader at Toledo was postponed.

The up-and-coming Louisville Colonels moved within one game of overtaking St. Paul in sixth place by beating the Saints 4 to 1 behind Lefty Vic Johnson's four-hitter.

Consolidating their hold on third place, the Columbus Redbirds completed a clean sweep of their three-game series with the Kansas City Blues with a final 2-1 decision. Lefty Dockins collected his seventh victory after besting Don Hendrickson in a hurling duel.

Emil Verban, with 3-for-3, was the vital factor in the Flock's offensive. His single in the fifth set up a run and another safety in the seventh drove in the deciding marker after the Blues' Roy Zimmerman had doubled to score George Scharein and tie the score in the sixth.

It's A People's War

We are paying more in taxes than ever before... and likely will pay more. But we cannot rely on taxes to finance the war. It would not be fair to base a tax on the average single family income when many families have more than one income. We could borrow all the money from the banks, but for both economic and social reasons this is undesirable. The government would then sacrifice its greatest dam against inflation. This is a People's War and the people should finance it. The people WANT to finance it. Sale of War Bonds has mounted consistently since Pearl Harbor. They give their lives... You lend your money.
